

I urge you to retain the current ownership rules. These rules protect public interests, not private ones. Media consolidation will produce a dictatorship over ideas and points of view. You can't have a free and open society if all points of view are not readily available over the airwaves.